General Information

Who Should Attend?

This conference program is designed for attorneys, agents, representatives of professional athletes, professional sports teams and leagues, players associations, stadium and arena authorities, and companies tangentially involved with amateur sports; students and professors of sports law; educators; and all others generally interested in the field.

What's the Format?

You will have time to ask questions after the individual presentations or panel discussions. There will be social events and other opportunities to meet speakers, SLA Board members, and other registrants, as well as to learn about the Sports Lawyers Association.

What About Substitutions or Cancellations?

Substitutions may be made at any time. Written cancellations must be received by April 26; 75% of the registration fee will be refunded or the paid fee can be applied to the 2013 Annual Meeting in Atlanta, Georgia. All registration fees must be paid before the meeting. On-site registrants are expected to pay all fees on-site; SLA will not invoice.

What If I'm Only Attending the NFL Certified Contract Advisor Session?

Registration for the SLA Annual Conference covers all educational sessions, as well as the NFL Certified Contract Advisor Session. There is no separate, single fee for this specific session. Questions regarding your individual NFLPA requirements should be directed to the NFLPA office in Washington, DC.

Is This Conference Tax Deductible?

Income tax deductions for expenses of education, including travel, meals, lodging, and registration fees, undertaken to maintain and improve professional skills are allowed under Treas. Reg. 1.162.5 and Coughlin v. Commissioner, 203 F 2nd 307, and subject to the tax reform act of 1986.

Conference Attire

The conference attire will be business casual.

Supporting Materials

This year conference handouts will be distributed to attendees on CD prior to the conference. There will not be a book of handouts on-site, or printed handouts on-site.

On-site CLE Questions

A representative from Tulane Law School will be present to answer specific CLE questions.

Hotel Information

Hilton San Diego Bayfront

Rising 30-stories above San Diego Bay, the Hilton San Diego Bayfront is a spirited blend of San Diego's coastal influences, style, innovation, and of course the city's unmistakable vibe. The hotel was opened in December of 2008. Highlights of the Hilton Bayfront include:

- San Diego's first and only saltwater hotel pool, located directly alongside San Diego Bay
- A 4.3-acre park and waterfront promenade with a lush variety of trees and plants
- An incredible collection of San Diego inspired local artwork throughout the hotel and grounds
- Spa Aquazul and fitness center, a therapeutic ocean oasis offering an elaborate range of relaxation and renewal
- Direct access to biking, walking, rollerblading, and boating along the San Diego Embarcadero and on San Diego Bay

The hotel is located at One Park Boulevard and the hotel website is www.bit.ly/SLA_HiltonSD.

The special room rate for SLA attendees is $230 per night single or double room, plus applicable taxes.

Reservations can be made online by following the link on the SLA website at www.sportslaw.org or call 800.445.8667 and identify yourself as attending the Sports Lawyers Association Conference.

The hotel reservation cut-off is April 17, 2012. After that date, reservations will be accepted on a space and rate availability basis only.

In Memoriam: Keven J. Davis

SLA Board Member Keven J. Davis passed away December 23, 2011, at the age of 54, after battling with a brain tumor. Keven's friendship and professionalism will always be remembered, and missed, by his friends, colleagues and clients. The SLA wishes to recognize Keven in conjunction with this year's SLA Annual Conference, including a reprint of the following article from the Seattle Times, written by Sonia Krishnan.

Lawyer Keven Davis Was a Mentor to Young Artists

Keven Davis made it look so easy.

One moment, the prominent attorney would be in his Seattle office negotiating a multimillion-dollar contract for an athlete. The next, he'd be on the court coaching his son's basketball team.

In between, the former Mount Baker, Washington resident managed to serve on a slew of community boards and devote himself to shepherding talented young artists through the legal morass of the entertainment industry.

But it was his job as a father that he took most seriously. "He could be in the biggest negotiation of his life, but he would always take our call," said his son, Kahlil Davis, 30, of New York City. "He was never not there."

Mr. Davis, who represented clients from Sir Mix-A-Lot to Serena and Venus Williams, died December 23rd from brain cancer. He was 54.

A lawyer to the bone, "he was meeting with clients, sending emails and trying to close a deal until he couldn't anymore," said Faith Childs-Davis, his former wife.

Mr. Davis was born October 7, 1957, in Sacramento, California, the son of a Brazilian-born housekeeper and an African-American military man. The Davises were one of the few black families in their neighborhood, said his older brother, Skip Davis. Mr. Davis was the second of five children and as a boy, he earned the nickname "Smiley." During Little League games, "every time he came to bat, whether he struck out or not, he'd be smiling," Skip Davis said.

That charm did not go unnoticed by Childs-Davis, who met Mr. Davis in 1978 when she was a 19-year-old student at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles. Mr. Davis was 20. "He was the most popular guy on campus," she said.

He was whip-smart—yet approachable. Mr. Davis could talk to the president of the university as easily as the custodian, she said. He also was driven to seek justice and fairness, which underscored his later work as a mentor for young artists, she said. The two fell in love and married in 1980.

Mr. Davis received his law degree from the University of California, Berkeley, and became the father of two sons. The family moved to Seattle where Mr. Davis started practicing contract law for the firm Garvey, Schubert, Adams and Barer.

In 1999, Mr. Davis received a scare. He had been diagnosed with a brain tumor and needed surgery. The tumor turned out to be benign, Childs-Davis said. The chances of it returning seemed slim to none, she said. After the operation, Mr. Davis seemed more determined than ever to take advantage of life. He established a sports and entertainment law practice in New York and, in 2001, moved his family to Manhattan. His career seemed on fire. Mr. Davis earned recognition in 2003 from Sports Illustrated as one of its 101 Most Influential Minorities in Sports. The magazine mentioned how, in 2000, he negotiated Venus Williams' $40 million Reebok deal, "the biggest endorsement contract ever for a female athlete."

He also attended celebrity bashes, among those, P. Diddy's star-studded "White Party" in the Hamptons, said his longtime friend, Paul Toliver, of Seattle. "It was part of his work. But we were all kind of envious of him," Toliver said, laughing.

Mr. Davis went to the hospital last year for more tests, which detected another tumor called glioblastoma multiforme. This time, the doctors said it was only a matter of time.

Childs-Davis and their two sons cared for Mr. Davis as he grew weaker. He entered hospice last fall. "He felt like there was a lot of unfinished business he had to take care of," she said. Just before Christmas, with his family around him, Mr. Davis died.

Besides his former wife, sons, and brother, Mr. Davis is survived by his mother, Benedicta Davis, of Sacramento; siblings Kent Davis and Carol Davis, of Sacramento; son Noah Davis, of Los Angeles; and his grandson, Moses Davis, of Los Angeles.

A memorial service was held in Sacramento on January 14th.

The 2012 Sports Lawyers Association Philanthropic donation will be made to the Sports Bigs Program of the Big Brother Big Sister (BBBS) organization of San Diego County. The donation will be made in honor of Keven, who was a Big Brother in King's County from 1993 to 1995, and will be used to benefit the youth of San Diego.
